Sunderland Freshwater Angling Club

Silksworth Lakes were created in the early 1980's as a part of the reclamation of the old Silksworth Colliery site. The lower lake was established as a fishing venue whilst the top lake was originally designed for watersports. The lower lake very quickly became a popular angling venue and has continued to thrive over the years. The top lake has now also been adopted by Sunderland Freshwater Angling Club following an initial stocking of carp in 2006.
